

NO'OY YIL DOLT'OL

Sun and Moon

Chapman II.4, 106-109.

The storyteller is not named.

Qay xuchux xudhi'onh tr'in'ne. Sraqay~ yozr ye yit Village big there was it is said. Children young there xiditl'itth'e, chiliqay diniyhin xividadr yil gesilnalín.
lived boys four their with five people.
Axaxildik niq'olonh tr'igidilt'ix. Xaneginh longh Now woman did not want to Strangers many younger sister
yil xiyiq'at xiyighun' ididił. Qay yit xut'an yil too wanted her they came to her. Village there people also daline' tr'igidilt'ix. Yitots'in' xidigal niq'oldalin but she did not want Then finally the women to marry.
chiliqay yil qay xut'an xaxighilzrek. Yitots'in' the men also village people they took Then partners.
tsighilde'on'. Ngin'qogg no'oy yil dolt'ol yil giquł.
it was dark. On earth sun and moon also were not.
Yitots'in' eyigginh niq'olonh yixi tathdo'.
Then that woman there started to live.
Xaneginh qul. Qay xut'an xiyinił'anh qul. Yitots'in' Strangers were none. Village people did not notice her. Then ngi'egh q'u'edoyh. ine' xiyinił'anh qul. Ts'ixuyil outside she walks but they did not notice And so her.
Chiliqay~ xivi'ot nixidelanh.~ Ixuxuyil tthidangith vitthe' boys their were. Then at night her head wives vitr'ilniyh vilaltingh hingo.~ "Xaneginh qul. Diva someone touched she slept while. "Strangers are none. Who go dit'anh?" inedhinh. Daline' yiyil xinayh. here does it?" she thought. But with him she talked.

Idivenhditux yixudz ditith't'an' eyigginh chel xudon'idoyinh.
Every day thus he began to that young who came in.
do man

Antr'a viqing' athdlat xiq'i. "Diva go dit'anh?"
As if her hus- he became like. "Who here does it?"
band

inedhinh. "Aixi~ gay yit xut'an xivi'otqay xelanh.
she thought. "Entire village there people their wives are.

Segha zro vi'ot qul," inedhinh. "Xaneginh yil guldi," My only his wife is not," she thought. "Strangers also are not,"
older brother

inedhinh. "Gitth'ithgi vittheqh itatlchith. Yitots'in' she thought. "Feathers his hair I'll tie to. Then traittth'et tthixitathdatl da' gitth'ithgi vittheqh kashim they come out when feathers his hair ithichidhinh' oqo xenatl-'el," inedhinh. "Gila, ngiyiq" is tied to for I will look," she thought. "Okay, down (to the kashim) xiyeningidoyh. Gila, vilngaltingh. Sidedig vil axa," go back into it. Okay go to sleep. I too am sleepy," yilne. Vittheqh~ igithichith ts'in'. Yitots'in' xiyentithiyo she said His hair tied to it being. And so he started to him. back in eyigginh chel. Yitots'in' vil adi notitl'iningh.

that young And then sleep without she remained.
man.

Xuyodil'anh ts'ixuyan'. Axaxildik yititlqon'. Yitots'in'
She was thinking only. Then it started to Then get light.

tthineyo. Yitots'in' xidiyix xudoy natadhit. Ixuxuyil she went out. Then their doorway she stood. Then house

tthantr'itithidatl axaxildik chiliqay tthanxitithidatl ts'in', some started to go out and then young men went out as, xunil'anh ine' xivittheqh ghun'~ giqul. Ixuxuyil vegha she looked but their hair upon was nothing. Then her older brother

tthan'eltlux. Yiniil'anh tr'edha vittheqh igithichith. leaped out. She looked behold his hair was tied onto.
at him

Viyil tsighilditidhi'on'. Vinan' che dindiq'asr. Xildik With her it became dark. Her face also became red. Then viye xudolningh ts'in'.

she was angry.

Yitots'in' dranh axaxildik xudonyalyayh vida' neg
Then day then she brought it her fine in parka

ggusr vighun' qul iy. Dezrenh yan' da'. Giq'ux yil dirt on it none that. Beautiful only parka. Fat too gag yil xudon'elyo xithag ts'in'. Xiyil vonh yiyil berries with she brought without speaking. And her with her in mother xinayh ine'. Yitots'in' nixudilq'onh hingo. Axaxildik she spoke but. Then she built a fire meanwhile. And then idedig tonxiditl'itanh eyigginh niq'olonh. Axaxildik she too bathed that woman. And then nithitl'enh da' neg ye. Qatrith yil. Axaxildik vanhgiq she dressed parka fine in. Moccasins too. And then "ice cream" yighun'~ nineqonh degha tth'og yet. Yitots'in' tavasr by him she put down her older bowl in. And then round knife

brother

ilchet. Yitots'in' dimama' dida'~ ghoyixi~ xandiyinatht'otth.
she took. Then her breasts her parka inside she cut off.

Axaxildik yitots'in' vanhgiq q'idz diyethdlo.
And then then "ice cream" upon she put it.

Yitots'in' q'iy xined yinghetthiyh. Yitots'in'
And then an awl she stuck in it. And then xuyeyitighiqonh. Ngi'ot idiq'an'elnek. Tr'edha vegha she brought it into Over she straightened Behold her older the kashim. there herself up. brother nginuq dathdo. Yix nedr yitots'in' yighun' diyedhiqonh. at the was sitting. House middle then by him she placed it.

back

"Nginh lo'its'in' lo go ~dingit'anh," yilne. "Agide,
"You truly thus did," she said "Now,
to him.

ngin'qogg xudina' xiyaxa imo tola," yilne.
on earth people for sickness will be," she said to him.

Yitots'in' yixi tadhiyo. Ixuxuyil viyil xigitidhi'on'.
And then there she left. Then she ascended with the sun.

Yitots'in' vegha yil dida' nondolcheth diqatrith
Then her older also his parka put on his moccasins
brother

chenh. Giq'ith zro yenghit'atth inato ts'in'. "Sidadr too. One side only he put on (boot) being in a hurry. "My younger sister

xut'a sighontithiyo," inedhinh. Yitots'in' idedig perhaps has left me," he thought. And then he too tadhiyo dolt'ol athdlat.

went out moon he became.

SUN AND MOON

Note. This story is known among Athabaskans, Eskimos, Aleuts, and the Indians of the Northwest Coast. In his 1894 ms. of this text, Chapman says that the storyteller remarked after the story, "We do not look at the sun, because of her shame, for we too feel shame for her sake; but we look at the moon, which has no shame."

There was a big village. There there lived a family of five people, four boys and their younger sister.

This young woman did not want to marry. Many strangers came seeking her. So did many people of that village, but she refused to marry. Finally all the men and women of the village took spouses. It was dark in those days--the sun and moon did not yet exist.

So the woman lived there alone. No strangers came. The people of the village didn't notice her. She walked around outside, but they paid no attention to her. And the brothers had wives. Then one night, while she was sleeping, someone touched the woman's head. "There are no strangers here. Who is doing it?" she wondered. But she talked with him. He began to come in and behave that way every day. He became like her husband. "Who is doing this?" she thought. "Every man in the village has a wife. Only my older brother does not have a wife. There are no strangers around, either. I'll tie feathers to his hair. Then when the men come out of the kashim, I'll look to see who has feathers tied to his hair," she thought.

"Go back down into the kashim," she said to him. "Go to sleep. I'm sleepy too." She had tied them to his hair. And so he went back into the kashim. She stayed awake, just thinking. Then it started to get light. She went outside and stood in the doorway. Then, as the young men started to come out, she looked at them, but no one had things on his hair. Then out jumped her older brother. She looked at him, and there were feathers tied in his hair. Her sight became dark; her face became red; she was angry.

Then during the day, she brought in her fine, clean new parka, her beautiful parka. She brought in fat, too, and berries; she did not speak. Even when her mother spoke to her. She built up the fire. She dressed in her fine parka, and her moccasins. She put fat and berries down by her older brother in a bowl. Then she took her woman's knife, and inside her parka she cut off her breasts, and she put them upon the berries and fat. In it she stuck an awl. Then she brought it into the kashim. She came in and stood up straight. Behold, at the back sat her older brother. Then by him, in the middle of the house, she set it down.

"Truly you have done this," she said to him. "Now sickness will come to people upon this earth." And then she left. Then she ascended with the sun. Then her older brother put on his parka also, and his moccasins. He only put on one boot, since he was in haste. "My younger sister may leave me," he thought. And then he too ascended, and became the moon.